Flea Markets, RV Parks, Festivals Dallas/Ft. Worth & Houston, Texas

Traders Village is a Texas-size marketplace with a little bit of everything, all at bargain prices. Locations in both Dallas/Fort Worth and Houston, Texas.

Since Traders Village opened in the Dallas/Fort Worth area in Grand Prairie in 1973, and in Houston in 1989, millions of people have browsed, shopped and traded within the acres filled with thousands of dealers offering a little bit of everything, all at bargain prices.

From the days of the Trading Post in the Old West until the present, making a "good deal" is something that brings a smile to the buyer as well as something for everyone. The vast array of goods and services offered by Traders Village dealers gives the general public an opportunity to pursue those "good deals" in a state fair atmosphere and at the same time provides an inexpensive entertainment alternative for family outings.

Only at Traders Village can you stroll through literally thousands of shops, wheel and deal with the shop owners themselves and get the bargain of a lifetime. From paper clips to bulldozers, on any given weekend, you can find it at Traders Village.

Every weekend, the market becomes a city within a city, complete with a top notch RV Park, kiddie rides and games, ATM machines, stroller and wheelchair rental, snack stands, restaurants, mobile beverage carts, covered rest areas, modern restrooms, and all types of special amenities not found anywhere else.

Besides the great shopping, there's always something happening at the markets. Festivals and special events abound all year long with Chili & BBQ Cookoffs, Native American Pow Wows, Car Shows and Swap Meets, Cajun Fests, Tractor Shows and more.

Discover for yourself the most affordable family entertainment option available today at this open-air bargain hunter's paradise.
